

ABSTRACT

A process and system for the automatic upgrading of a programmable device system in communication with a server, providing new versions of software or components, and verification that new features have been implemented successfully and are working properly in the new version of software, and optionally including backing up and restoring the old software in the event testing results in a critical failure.